WOUNDED.

An Incident of the Present War.

"Six hundred and forty-three wounded !" " If that were all!" My wife speke in sad voice. . "If that were all ?"

"The return is given as complete," I said in my hand. "One hundred and forty-one killed, and six hundred and forcy three wound-

" Did you see Anna !" I asked.

" Yes."

" How is she?"

"Calm, but hurt very deeply. She only had the news this morning."

" Is she going to him!"

"There has not been time to decide what i best. Her husband's brother is here, and will got as much information by telegraph to-day as it is possible to receive. To-night or to-morrow he will leave for the battle-field. Anna may go with him."

"She appeared to be hart deeply, you say?" "Yes," replied my wife: " and was in most intense pain. Every line in her face exhibited suffering. One hand was pressed all the while tightly over her heart."

" What did she say !"

"Not much. She seemed looking into the distance and trying to make out things seen but imperfectly. If he were to die I think it would kill her."

"Two deaths by the same bullet," I said, هجلتند أأبد سناب بالمراه فيطلعونون وبالتهور مراج يهوو

In the evening I called with my wife to see Mrs. Harley. A telegram had been received staring that her husband's wound, though seeere, was not considered dangerous. The ball had been extracted, and he was required to be doing well. She was going to leave in the night train with her brother-in-law, and would be with her husband in the quickest time it was referring again to the newspaper which I held possible to make. How a lew hours of suffering had changed her. The wound was deep present who his Mr. Harley, had never thought and very painful.

It was nearly two months before Harley was answered. Her tones were even subter than at hospital. His wife had been permitted to see her, while she was not observing him, with a him every day, and to remain in attendance on troubled connectance. He did not again speak him for a greater part of the time.

"Did you know that Mr. Harley and his Join his regimem wife were at home?" said I, on coming in one

"Our wounds, so ghastly to the eyes, often get no deeper-than the firsh and home -The pain is short, and nature comes quickly to the work of cure with all her healing energies.
